MISSION

Not Following US Lead Regarding Japanese

From Our Own Correspondent

London, Feb. 10. A Foreign Office spokesman told me today that the British government had no intention of following Nigerian the United States example and allowing a Japanese trade mission to set up a permanent office in Britain.

He added that the British government knew the United States were permitting the establishment of Japanese trade missions (in New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Honolulu) and had been kept informed while these arrangements were being made. "We aren't doing anything ourselves on the same lines," the spokesman said,

Of the Far East generally Mr Pearson said, "That part of the | world is on the march as never before. In the wake of political freedom in many former colonies people want a better standard of life. every child between the ages of five and 15; there are free medical services; and the Corporation takes responsibility for looking after orphans and unwanted children. How does Hongkong compare? Although revenue amount; to a full third of Glasgow's, Hongkong has not a single public library; has no municipal building; has no general free education; has only a limited amount of free medical service; expects most social work to be financed by private donations. The ironical touch given to the post-war slogan that Hongkong must be regarded as the shop-window of British life, is that so little of its civic aspects begin to measure up to the standards now enjoyed in Britain. This is one of the reasons why the work of the British Council in Hongkong, is so severely handicapped. How can the earnest representatives of that august organisation convince the people of Hongkong that the British way of life is incomparable when, in fact, so lew of its intrinsic features are reproduced in the Colony? If Glasgow

should easily be able to provide itself

But for this expenditure the life. Mr McAslan paid us too high a compliment when he declared that "Like Hongkong, Glasgow has been built up by the voluntary efforts and hard work of a lot of people." Glasgow has so must more to show for those efforts than Hongkong. The Colony, it is readily admitted, is a shining example of concentrated, wholehearted endeavour to aspire successfully to commercial pre-eminence in the Far East. And it is something of which we need not be ashamed. The only flaw is that relatively little effort has been made to bring its social achievements in line with those of industry and commerce. The British Council and lots of other small organisations are doing their best to raise the cultural, educational and social level of the Colony, but their work is hampered by absence of physical facilities which, after all, represent a prime incentive to such labours. Nor can there be discerned any serious longterm official plan to make good this deficiency. The question of municipal buildings including public library, concert hall, theatre and museum produces, when raised, only sardonic laughter from officialdom. The Abercrombie town planning report, it would seem, has been pigeon-holed, and any serious reference to it now is likely to produce only incredulous smiles that such a project should be taken seriously. In the meantime, Government's credit balance as between revenue" and expenditure continues to grow apace, with never a thought that at least some of it might be put aside for, say, just one public library. It is to be feared that it will be a very long time before Hongkong can be compared with Glasgow.

The choice that of Oscar Wilde's "Importance of Being Earnest" was I felt, somewhat unfortunate, as this play had been presented by the Hongkong Stage Club only last October and comparisons are inclined to be invidious, in both parties. There seemed to be a tendency to overnet in three of the parts and slurs were discernible. Mention must be made of:

Fay Swann who as Cecily I have long felt that one of showed an exuberance that was well-backed up by John Glendenning. Petter Beadle's production revealed considerable thought and his talent is unmistakable. I hope that this will not be the last full-length play that we shall hear,

JUNIOR LEAGUE TAKES THE SPOTLIGHT

BY "STARDUST"

Interest in the pennant races wanes to an appreciable extent this week as, with the completion of the preliminary round fixtures in the Senior League, only postponed games will be scheduled in the next fortnight.

Five Senior Loop teams are now assured of a shot at the coveted title. St Joseph's, Jaguars, US Navy, Braves, and Americans have qualified for the play-offs but, as this final series will be contested by only four teams, an elimination series will have to be played off by the Navy, Braves, Americans, and possibly the Jaguars. The elimination series will commence when postponed fixtures have been

IF you are born today, there is a certain com-L plexity in your nature which makes you a rather difficult person to understand. Those who know you only casually often underestimate your capabilities. You can be an exceptionally hard worker whon you are in-terested in something—but completely lazy and ineffective when drifting along with nothing to hold your attention. You have a set mind and if pushed against your will, you can be completely and thoroughly unco-operative. Once you are headed where you want to go, nothing can deviate you from your purpose.
